

Crystal Morey: Figural Sculpture: Additive / Subtractive Processes in Porcelain

September 20th – 22nd ,2019

PROJECT
ART

Join artist Crystal Morey in Figural Sculpture: Additive / Subtractive Processes in Porcelain, a weekend of sculpting demonstrations and conversation, exploring the hand sculpted porcelain figurine. Crystal Morey will share her process of creating a figure in hollow form, while adding layers of additive and reductive detail. Crystal will discuss the development of her techniques, proportion, anatomy, and gesture, the importance of water content in porcelain, and creating the delicate details that add content and emotion to her work. No experience is required. Limited to 20.

Crystal Morey lives and works in Oakland California, where she maintains a full-time studio practice. An emerging artist in both the new contemporary, pop-surrealist genre as well as the art-historical craft and decorative arts arena, Crystal's work has been featured in numerous books and magazines, shown in galleries and museums, and collected around the world. Morey is known for her hand sculpted, highly detailed porcelain works of human animal hybrids. She finds her inspiration in art history, Baroque porcelain traditions of Europe and ideas of contemporary environmental issues. Morey creates work with delicate beauty and empathic narratives of today's rapidly changing ecosystems. Crystal Morey received her BFA in Ceramic Sculpture from the California College of the Arts and her MFA in Spatial Art from San Jose State University. She continues her studies through artists residencies and expansive interests in art history and museum research.

The demonstration workshop begins Friday night, with a slide presentation and a group dinner (7–9pm). The workshop starts Saturday, from 9am–3pm at Project Art in Cummington, MA, followed by a Gallery Talk and Reception at Ferrin Contemporary in North Adams, MA. A group dinner will follow at Bright Ideas Brewery & A-OK Berkshire BBQ. Sunday is a half day of demonstration (9am–12pm), lunch is not included. This workshop will happen in conjunction with the opening weekend of her show, Venus on the Waves, at Ferrin Contemporary in North Adams, MA, on view September 21st–November 2nd. The opening is Saturday, September 21st from 5–7pm.
